In May of 2018, I suffered a massive stroke that left me paralyzed on my left side and unable to speak. I was 52 years old and had always been healthy and active. The stroke came out of nowhere, and it changed my life forever.

The first few months after my stroke were the hardest. I was in a lot of pain, and I had to relearn how to do everything from walking to talking. I was frustrated and scared, and I didn't know if I would ever be able to live a normal life again.

But I was determined to recover. I worked hard with my physical and speech therapists, and I slowly started to make progress. I was able to walk again, and I was able to start talking again. I also started to regain some of my independence.

It wasn't easy, but I never gave up. I knew that I had to keep fighting, and I knew that I would eventually get better.

Today, I am happy to say that I am a stroke survivor. I am able to walk, talk, and live independently. I still have some challenges, but I am grateful for every day that I have.

I wrote this book to share my story with others who have been affected by stroke. I want to give them hope and inspiration. I want them to know that they are not alone, and that they can overcome this challenge.

If you or someone you love has been affected by stroke, I encourage you to read this book. It is a story of hope, resilience, and triumph. It is a story that will inspire you to never give up.

Here is a preview of what you will find in My Stroke Survival Journey:

- My personal story of stroke recovery
- Tips and advice for stroke survivors and their loved ones
